

LECTURE BY WELL KNOWN PENOLOGIST

Thomas Mott Osborne Will Speak at R. V. C.

TO-DAY

Subject Will be, "Human Welfare Within Prison Walls"

Thomas Mott Osborne, the internationally known penologist, will address a public meeting under the auspices of the School for Social Workers at the Royal Victoria College this afternoon at five o'clock.

His subject will be "Human Welfare Within Prison Walls." McGill students will be admitted free of charge.

R. L. Calder, K. C. will occupy the chair.

Thomas Mott Osborne, although immediately associated with the subject of prisons and prison reform, is a man who has had wide interests in public and civic affairs in New York State. A graduate of Harvard, at one time candidate for lieutenant-governor, mayor of Auburn and member of the Public Service Commission and later Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner, prison and penal reform were eventually to become his absorbing interest.

As Chairman of the New York State Commission on Prison Reform he attracted nationwide interest. He had been giving his attention for some years to the Junior Republic that most successful experiment in the reclamation and education of "difficult" children, and had felt that the self-government system in use there could be adapted to prisons.

Mr. Osborne is known all over America as the man who voluntarily went to Auburn Prison for a week's confinement in order to learn at first-hand the conditions of prison life, and who was latterly appointed as Warden of Sing Sing Prison. To this task he brought not only a wealth of sympathy, but also the mature experience of a highly trained and successful business executive. At the time of his appointment Sing Sing was the stronghold of a corrupt political ring, which regarded the institution merely as a legitimate object of exploitation. The story of Mr. Osborne's fight against this ring for more humane conditions in Sing Sing is a dramatic one. His administration of the prison was revolutionary in its revolt from both the methods and the spirit of the old order. He adopted as the cardinal principles of prison administration the elimination of graft, waste and inefficiency in the business end of the institution and the introduction of a spirit of justice and fair play towards the prisoners.

The speaker has always contended that the purpose of a prison should be not vindictive punishment but the social rehabilitation of the offender. Each inmate was to him not so much a prisoner with so much time to serve for a given offense, but a human being, in most cases the victim of faulty environment, no worse at heart many times than the men still outside of jail, but needing to realize his responsibility to society, and to learn to subjugate his impulses for the common good. Whatever tended to degrade the prisoner, to lower his respect or to excite him to revengeful bitterness, Mr. Osborne strove to remove from prison life and at the same time to develop the faculties of social cooperation and self-control. His theory was that the prison was a real failure in so far as it failed to send the prisoner out into the world a saner, more self-reliant and more self-respecting man than when he had entered the institution.

Mr. Osborne's hardest fight, while he remained warden, of Sing Sing, was not with the prisoners but with the prison ring, which fought him at every step.

In 1917 Secretary of the Navy Daniels appointed Mr. Osborne as head of the U.S. Naval Penitentiary at Portsmouth, N. H. with the rank of Lieutenant-commander in the U. S. Naval Reserves. Mr. Osborne, previous to this appointment made an investigation of the prison, studied the discipline, training routine and other features and rendered a report, one recommendation of which was that the character of the institution be changed from that of a penal institution into that of a detention school. It was particularly important at that time that the young men sent to the naval prison a large majority of whom were not guilty of any criminal offenses, should be saved for the Navy and not permanently dismissed from the service. The Welfare League was put into operation among the prisoners and did a marvelous work. A very large percentage of sailors, who heretofore had received not only dishonorable discharge, but loss of citizenship as well, were returned to the Navy and thus much good material was saved for the country.

Mr. Osborne resigned from the Navy in 1920. He has written three prison books, "Within Prison Walls," "Society and Prisons," and "Prisons and Common Sense." In the second book named is a full discussion of

McGill Intermediates Play Loyola To-day

FAST TEAMS

Thrilling Encounter Scheduled for Five O'clock

"If McGill men wish to see a thrilling hockey contest, one of the most exciting which will take place this year, they will do well to come to the intermediate hockey game tomorrow at the Forum," said a prominent hockey manager when interviewed by one of the Daily reporters last night.

The stage is set for the hockey battle which will take place this afternoon at five o'clock at the Forum, between the two leaders of the intermediate league, Loyola and McGill. "Loyola has a fast team, one which is hard to beat but our boys will fight and win tomorrow," said the same hockey manager. "It is necessary, however," he added, "that they receive students." Now that Senior hockey is over the only championship for McGill to win is the Intermediate. If they win tomorrow they will be tied for first place and it is hoped that the students will turn out in force to cheer them on to victory.

"Herb" Murphy, member of the students council and rugby star of last season's fame will be in the nets. Dion will occupy the centre berth and McGerrigle and Smith will present their usual cast iron defence. "Tiny" Thompson and Pinky the wings, have plenty of speed and can be relied on to secure some goals. Plenty of snags will be on hand so everything will be available to make the game a fast and interesting one.

The line up of the McGill team which faces Loyola tomorrow is as follows:—

Goal:—Murphy
Defence:—McGerrigle
Smith
Centre:—Dion
Wing:—Thompson
Pinky
Subs:—Sullivan, MacDonald, Arnold

THEOLOGS TO HOLD BANQUET TO-NIGHT

Canon Shatford and Other Notables Will Speak

The annual banquet for Theological students will be spread in the ballroom of the Union to-night. Pierre is looking after the catering, and after their banquet has been arranged there are several speakers of well-known merit who will address the gathering.

Canon Shatford will give the principal address of the evening and as many of the students will remember his address on "Truth" which he gave two years ago his words should make a long and lasting impression upon his hearers.

Dr. Wm. Caldwell and Dr. D. S. Ritchie of the McGill staff will also address the students, and can be depended to lay some interesting thoughts before the students.

Other speakers will be such well-known University figures as H. R. C. Amaron, Norman Egerton and A. Johnson. All these men are very capable speakers and it is expected that they will be much enjoyed by the students.

The tickets for the banquet have been selling well up to this point. However there is still room for more and it is anticipated that every Theolog who can possibly come will attend this, their second annual banquet, to-night in the Union.

It is to be changed from that of a penal institution into that of a detention school. It was particularly important at that time that the young men sent to the naval prison a large majority of whom were not guilty of any criminal offenses, should be saved for the Navy and not permanently dismissed from the service. The Welfare League was put into operation among the prisoners and did a marvelous work. A very large percentage of sailors, who heretofore had received not only dishonorable discharge, but loss of citizenship as well, were returned to the Navy and thus much good material was saved for the country.

PLAYERS CLUB TO GIVE THREE PLAYS

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Evenings

There are still several good seats obtainable for the first production of McGill Players Club, which will be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of this week. Three plays are on the programme.

"Peter the Great and Alexis" is the first play. It is adapted from one of Walter Savage Landor's imaginary conversations. Galsworthy's "The First and the Last" is the second play, and "Pearl of Dawn" by Holland Hudson will complete the evenings entertainment. Musical numbers have also been arranged for.

The three plays will be presented in the small front room of the Biological Building, which has been loaned to the Club through the kindness of Professor F. E. Lloyd, head of the department of Botany and director of the Building.

Rehearsals have been carried on for the past two weeks and the cast is ready for Thursday evening. Furniture has been loaned by several downtown firms, while much valuable material has been obtained from the community Players, who are interested in the McGill Players Club.

Several members of the professoriate have declared their intention of being present at the presentation.

DR. BARNES SPEAKS ON ICE DETECTION

Illustrated Lecture Before Physical Society

Further problems in regard to the detection of ocean ice, the possible destruction of bergs in high latitudes, and the temperature fluctuations in the neighbourhood of ice, were among the chief points in the talk by Dr. H. T. Barnes before the Physical Society last Friday afternoon in the Physics Building.

Dr. Barnes described the early work which he did on precise temperature measurement, all log of recording rapid change being avoided by means of his micro thermometer. He described the inadequate equipment of both the U. S. A. Bureau of Standard Ship and the British "Scotia" Expedition, which was sufficient to explain why they did not succeed in obtaining records of ocean temperatures in the vicinity of ice in agreement with the lecture's results.

It was also pointed out that "pressure ice" is apt to be full of entrapped air bubbles. These expand when exposed to the rays of the sun and render the surface of an iceberg opaque, and furthermore cause cracking and rupturing of the ice, thus greatly facilitating the process of weathering. This has suggested to Dr. Barnes the plan which he proposes to carry out as an experiment this year, namely to apply localized heating by means of heat bombs in various places on an iceberg thus settling up tremendous local strains which should suffice to disrupt the berg.

Some very beautiful photographs of ice-crystals, and colloidal ice aggregates were shown. These were taken expressly for Dr. Barnes by Mr. Bentley who visited McGill a year ago, and showed a selection of his many hundreds of micro photographs of snow flakes.

The special thanks of the Society were tendered to Dr. Barnes for his great kindness in filling a gap at the Physical Society at little more than a moment's notice and for the interesting and stimulating address which he gave.

prison systems and a description of the founding of the Mutual Welfare League, the latest and most successful attempt to solve the prison problem. This is based on the fact that in order to educate men properly to live in a free community they must be given intensive training in the bearing of responsibility. The present prison systems attempt to direct the man by others sometimes by brute force, and terror or by the "honours" system of kindness and rewards given to individuals.

The series of lectures of which Mr. Osborne's is one, will be concluded on Feb. 24 when Dean Mackay will lecture on "The Present Impasse of Democracy." This last lecture should be one of great interest to McGill students.

Mr. Newby: "How does my new hat look?"
Mr. Newby: "It looks like two months of my salary."

HON. MR. PAGE WILL SPEAK WEDNESDAY

Postponed Lecture from Yesterday, Tomorrow

CANADIAN CLUB

Mr. Herbert Marler to Speak Next Monday

The Hon. Earle G. C. Page, Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia, who was unavoidably forced to cancel his engagement to speak yesterday before the Canadian Club, has now promised to fulfil his scheduled visit to McGill, by speaking tomorrow night at five o'clock in the Union Ball Room.

Although Mr. Page has not given out what subject he is going to speak on, it is highly probable that the keynote of his remarks will centre around Empire Unity.

But whatever the subject, it is sure to be both interesting and of educational value to everyone, and Mr. Page will be greeted by a large and appreciative audience, as it is seldom that McGill Students have a chance to hear such a distinguished representative from Australia.

As the Hon. Earle Page is over here for his health, McGill is very fortunate in persuading him to come and speak. Because of the official position that Mr. Page holds and because of his intimate acquaintance with the recent important trade agreement between the Australian Commonwealth and the Dominion, he has become a centre of attraction since his arrival in this country.

In an address to the Ottawa Canadian Club last Saturday he predicted brightened trade between the two parts of the Empire, but at the same time he admitted that the treaty could stand improvements. While on the continent he will study the Federal Reserve Banking System of the United States.

He is accompanied to this country by his wife and daughter and secretary.

Grant Glasco, President of the Club, will be in the Chair.

The attention of McGill students is also drawn to the fact that Mr. Herbert Marler will address the Canadian Club next Monday.

Mr. Marler needs little if any introduction to Montrealers, as he is such a well-known personage in this city. Last week in Ottawa Mr. Marler distinguished himself by making a very remarkable speech which was greatly praised by the leading journalists.

There will be further announcements about Mr. Marler's promised lecture in following issues, but his lecture is greatly anticipated, as his remarks expressed in a highly polished political manner ought to prove fascinating.

PROFESSORS VS. STUDENTS AT CHESS

Match Will be Played at the Faculty Club

The return chess match between the professors and students will take place this evening, when at 7.45, the players will assemble at the Faculty Club, 822 University St. The last match, held early in the session, resulted in a 4-1 win for the professors, and it is rumoured that the students have been practising hard to make up.

This is one of the outstanding events in the Chess Club's activities, and a heated clash is expected. Both sides have been reinforced since the first match, and the line-ups are equally strong. For the staff, it is expected there will play Professors Slack, Maas, Eve, Day, Lambert, Matthews and Carless while Garellick, Lidsky, Kurnser, Edel, Garmalse, Echenberg, Taylor and Crepeau will represent the students.

A little boy, out playing with sister, hurt his tongue with a stick. Consoling mother: "That's all right Dickie, God made your tongue. Dickie: "But sister messed it up."

"Business is all write with me; said the author."

STUDENTS' COUNCIL MEETING

A meeting of the Students' Council will be held at 5 p.m. to-day in the Union.

ANNUAL WILL BE OUT APRIL FIRST

Book to be Eight Pages Larger Than Last Year's

"Over half the book is now in the hands of the printers, and there is no reason why Old McGill 1926, should not appear on the campus by April first, the date originally stipulated."

This statement was made yesterday by a member of the Annual Board. The only thing that is holding up work on the book at the present time, it was pointed out is the fact that several clubs and societies, particularly the different athletic bodies are somewhat slow in having their pictures taken, and in handing accounts of their activities.

It was also definitely announced that this year's volume would be larger than the 1925 edition by eight pages, but that the original reduction in price of twenty-five cents, would hold good just the same. Great care has been expended in seeing that write-ups do not take the stereotyped form they have in past years and also to see that all photographic copy is particularly clear. Some exceptionally fine drawings will be included in the 1926 book.

Including among those who are writing for the book are, Sir Arthur Currie, Col. Wilfrid Bovey, Dr. Stephen Leacock, Dr. Nicholson, Coach Frank Shaughnessy and Dr. Basin of the graduates society.

Under the management of J. G. Brierley, a considerable amount of advertising has been obtained. It is expected that when the advertising campaign is closed, there will be a greater income from this source than there was last year.

FINAL SELECTION OF WRESTLERS MADE

"Best Team in Years," Says Coach Smith

In an interview with Coach Smith last night, in regard to the wrestling prospects this year and the chances for McGill to come through with a win in the assault-at-arms Mr. Smith said in part: "I believe that we now have one of the best wrestling teams that McGill has had for several years. Five out of the eight men have been on the team before and the others are all men of several years experience. In practically every class there is two or more men who are so nearly equal in ability that it was with the greatest difficulty that the final selection was made. It will be a great surprise to me if our wrestlers do not do their part, in the meet at Toronto, by turning out winners in practically every class."

All the team and several others are doing their part by turning out each night and going through exceptionally hard workouts. Mr. Smith is watching each man work and helping every one to brush up on holds in which he is least efficient. A few very advanced holds are also being taught and the men are receiving the final touches before they leave for Toronto Thursday.

The final selections have been made and the team that will represent McGill, in wrestling at the annual assault-at-arms is:—

112 lb.—Silver
118 lb.—Wood
126 lb.—Greenberg
135 lb.—Clement
147 lb.—MacNoughton
160 lb.—Adams
175 lb.—Demitre
Heavy—Frederwan

CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT COMING

Entertainment in Strathcona Hall After Next Practice

The Choral Society will again have an entertainment after the practice on Thursday in Strathcona Hall. In view of the great success of the last meeting of this kind it is expected that there will be a full and enthusiastic meeting and a good practice. The concert to be given on March 16th has much excellent material, but steady and complete practices are essential to ensure the finishing touches which will show the inimitable genius of the chorists of McGill at its best. The leader feels that if the standard attained at the broadcast concert can be maintained a really worth while musical event should be awaited by all music lovers of both Montreal and McGill. Details concerning tickets will be published later in this paper. At present it is only known that there will be special rates for students.

OUTLINE OF REVUE SALE OF TICKETS

Student Ticket Sale by Class Representatives

50c REDUCTION

Only Two Tickets Allotted to Each Student

The much anticipated Red and White Revue is drawing nearer every day and Grant Glasco announced yesterday that the student's tickets would go on sale tomorrow. Class representatives will handle the tickets, but it will be impossible for them to go after students to persuade them to buy. Students desiring the 50 cent reduction will get in touch with their class representative.

As the demand is going to be heavy only two tickets will be allotted to a student. The box office will open at the Union on March 2nd at 12 o'clock and it will be then that students will turn in their student tickets and receive regulars.

Terms are strictly cash for the student tickets, and these will only be on sale for a limited period. There will positively be no reduction without the purchase of the student tickets.

The ticket committee has set aside a limited amount of tickets in order to satisfy the University demand.

As Saturday night is essentially theatre night in Montreal, there is little doubt that the Montreal public will jam His Majesty's to capacity on that evening. In order to relieve the overcrowding on that night, students are urged to attend other evening performances, and the matinee.

Owing to the limited seating arrangements at His Majesty's, the ticket Committee further announced that it will be difficult to seat large parties all in the same area, and thought it wise to warn students to make up smaller groups, as it will be much easier to accommodate them.

Circular letters have been mailed to patrons of last year's revue, with a view to soliciting their patronage again this year, and mail orders are beginning to come in, and are receiving prompt attention from the Committee, which is prepared to handle capacity crowds at all performances.

The following is the scale of prices:—

Flat scale: 1.65 down for the Matinee.
Public scale: Box 2.75; Orch. 2.20.
1st. Bal. 2.20, 1.65 1.10; 2nd. Bal. .85.
Student scale: Boxes 2.75; Orch. 1.65.
1st. Bal. 1.65, 1.10, .85; 2nd. Bal. .55.
Matinee scale: Boxes 2.20; Orch. 1.65; 1st Bal. 1.65 1.10, 2nd. Bal. .55.

DR. M. J. MERRITT TO LECTURE AT S.C.A.

Subject: "The Historical Background of Jesus"

"The historical background of Jesus" will be the subject of an open lecture to be delivered at 5.00 o'clock this afternoon at Strathcona Hall by Rev. Dr. Max J. Merritt. This lecture is the first of a series of two on the background of Jesus the concluding address being scheduled for next Tuesday February 24th at the same time and place.

Dr. Merritt is Rabbi of Temple Emanuel, Westmount, the largest and most influential synagogue of the Reformed Jews in Montreal, and has for many years been regarded as one of the best speakers as well as one of the most brilliant biblical scholars of the city. Rabbi Merritt has of late been in great demand as a lecturer, and has just concluded a lengthy tour in the United States. It was with some difficulty that he was able to arrange to come to McGill.

The lecture this afternoon will be under the auspices of the Student Christian Association. The address will be of particular interest to those who are engaged in the study of the life of Jesus. The approach will be purely historical one, attempting to give the unbiased truth rather than to support any particular creed. As such it will be open to the whole University, and students of other religions have been particularly invited to attend.

PARLIAMENT TO CONSIDER IMMIGRATION

Debate to be of High Calibre

TO-NIGHT

Interest Runs High as Political Parties Prepare for Clash

When the Mod. Parliament meets to-night, a question of prime importance will be discussed. The question will take the form of an "Immigration Bill" which will be presented by the Liberal-Conservative Party.

In the words of the Government this bill is a "slavish imitation of the United States" while according to the Opposition it will be the means of "keeping Canada British." It will thus be seen that much argument probably will ensue and as both the Government and the Opposition report their forces to be at full strength the session is likely to be full of activity and wit.

The debate indeed according to all advance rumours should be of a much higher calibre than previous ones.

All the customary pomp and ceremony will take place when house opens at 8.15 and immediately upon the Speaker declaring the House open the debate will begin. The Literary and Debating Society executive again wishes to draw the attention of all students to the facts that they are "fulfilled members of the parliament and are entitled to come down and participate freely in the debate."

The Immigration Bill reads as follows: "Whereas it is desirable that the present immigration laws be changed and regulated so that the percentage of citizens of Anglo-Saxon and French origin be retained:

Be it enacted as follows:—
(1) The annual quota of immigrants coming into Canada from any one country shall be limited to 5 per cent if the number of persons of such origin who were resident in Canada in the year 1901.

(2) For the purpose of this bill a person shall be considered a citizen of the country in which he is born.

(3) The selective provisions regarding health, moral and economic desirability and assimilability, now in operation, shall continue in force.

(4) As an exception to section one of this bill the immigration quota for China, the Japanese Empire India and all other oriental nations shall be limited to twenty five persons for each year.

(5) This Bill shall not apply in the case of: students merchants and their families and government officials and their families.

BASKETBALL TEAM READY FOR QUEENS

Intercollegiate Game to Take Place To-morrow Night at M. H. S. Gym.

The senior basketball squad held their last practice in preparation for the game with Queens, last night. They had a snappy work-out lasting from 5.20 to nearly seven o'clock, p.m., and in the game against the Intermediates showed good form. The shooting of the squad in general, which has been their weak point all through the season has improved somewhat and their encounter with the Tricolor on Wednesday night should prove one of the best fixtures of the season. Coach Van Wagner was well satisfied with the team last night, and is giving them tomorrow to rest up.

The line-up will be slightly weakened from the loss of Turpel and Brown. Turpel's arm has not yet recovered sufficiently to allow him to play on Wednesday while Brown is in bed with a temporary illness. Both of these men from the forward line leave the choosing of the last man somewhat in doubt, and Blumstein, who has been playing guard may be called upon to take the forward position. The rest of the team will all be in the best condition, with Manson, Philpott and Boncher to lead the attack, while Hilton, Quackenbush and Rafalovich will take care of the defense.

The game is to take place in the Montreal High School gymnasium at 8.45 p.m. The Intermediates will meet the M.A.A.A. in a preliminary at 7.45. The number of the coupon to be used will be announced in to-morrow's Daily, while there will be no charge to the general public.

OVER-CONFIDENCE.

One of the student's great foes is over-confidence. It is an enemy that attacks in the dark. It becomes ingrained in one's nature almost before one is aware of it. It has become the cause of many supplementals to ordinary students, and grave disappointment to those from whom admirers expected great things. It forms a particular snag for first-year students, and does its worst damage in the final examinations.

No doubt many a youth, on looking at the notice boards, has been pleasantly surprised to find his name among the very elite of the first class. And this astonishing result is often found from a paper that the student thought reflected mediocre knowledge of the subject dealt with, that would surely be worthy of a lower number of marks than that required for a pass. In other examinations a student might find himself well up in the second or the third class divisions when he had felt certain that he could not reasonably expect more than a "scrape," and much more likely a "fail."

Having passed in all his subjects the undergraduate is rewarded for his success by the eulogistic remarks of relatives and friends, besides a definite feeling of contentment and good-will towards the world in general. Inspired by this, he begins to think that college life and work is nothing more nor less than a prolonged picnic. He forgets the many sleepless hours spent wearily during the week before examinations. He loses sight of the fact that he had worked under pressure of dire necessity on the subjects in which his knowledge was deficient. This accounted for his comparative success.

However, in his second term, with an increased interest in external college affairs, and an improved acquaintance with the banquet hall and the ballroom, he labors under the delusion that he is safe for the final ordeal as he accomplished the feat of passing the mid-term exams well. May arrives and the approach of the monitor with the first examination paper is synonymous of the first of a series of qualms which become more serious as time goes on. Then are heard the wails of a few, the regrets of many — the fruits of over-confidence.

CONDENSED COMMENT.

Under the auspices of the McGill Canadian Club, the Honorable Dr. Earle G. C. Page, Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Australia, will speak at the Union, Wednesday afternoon. To those anxious to learn something about a most interesting part of our Empire an excellent opportunity is offered. The Canadian Club is to be congratulated upon securing for McGill a man of the prominence of Dr. Page, and also for having enlisted the services of Mr. Herbert Marler, the member of parliament who by his very outspoken attitude on topics affecting Canada, has gained for himself considerable fame.

On Thursday evening, the first production of the McGill Players Club will be presented to those who are interested. "If the performance is to be the success that it deserves to be, the sale of tickets must be greater to-day and to-morrow than it has been during the past week. An excellent bill is being provided, and at a moderate price. There is no reason why this club should not receive good support from undergraduates.

ANNUAL MEETING OF MCGILL RIFLE CLUB

Team of Freshmen Won Rifle Shoot

Yesterday at 5.30 in the Union, the McGill Rifle Association held their annual meeting.

The elections for the ensuing year took place with the following results:—
Hon. Pres.—Dr. A. S. Eve
Hon. Vice-Pres.—Dr. J. P. Day
Pres.—C. H. Herbert
Vice-Pres.—K. M. Pale
Sec.—M. Pope
Treas.—J. Taylor

The active membership according to the minutes is 18. During the past year McGill was represented at 4 shoots, gaining second place in the intercollegiate competition. Mention was also made of the dinner provided by Dr. Tate the Hon. President, Reg. Heney told of his attempt to have McGill Rifle Association bought under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Board. On account of the dropping out, several years ago, and because it was a recognized sport, he encountered great difficulty in re-entering. Reg. Heney rendered a vote of thanks to Prof. Tait. The meeting then was adjourned.

It was pointed out that the McGill Rifle Association offers a real opportunity to men who desire to learn shooting. Each fall members of the club journey down to Point-aux-Trembles where very pleasant week-ends are spent. The members of the executive extend a very pressing invitation to all aspirants.

two seasons," the Daily was told, "and in the very first year of their reign the number of immigrants brought into the Dominion was some 73,000, a drop of over 17,000 from the year previous. The policy of the Government allows for 73,000, the bill of the Opposition provides for 250,000. Notwithstanding all this, the hastily aroused Prime Minister tries to get a few votes with the cry, 'They're going to empty our country.' But Barnum was right — you can't fool them all, all of the time." Intense enthusiasm for the new bill is manifested from the Atlantic to the Pacific. "The Hon." John P. Humphrey has assurance that the foresight of the Maritimers has seen the immense advantage of peopling their provinces with desirable.

"Hon. Scoop" Elliott has received a wire from his constituency of Vancouver reading, "Congratulations on your progressive policy. The quota system will be of immense benefit in the West. Last year a thousand Orientals landed in Vancouver and Victoria alone."

"The Hon." I. M. Silvanstein, speaking in St. Lawrence Ward, Montreal, last night was loudly cheered by the assembly of industrial and commercial men who are supporting the bill with all their powers.

GOVERNMENT.

The feeling in the country that it can depend on the Spector administration for just and careful legislation was amply exhibited yesterday when stocks rose and a brisk market was reported just as soon as the revised cabinet was announced.

The entire arrangement of the body which holds much of the Dominion future in store is said to be a monument of political sagacity.

The Right Honorable Mr. Spector to-day expressed his confidence that the members of the house would vote for proper immigration when the division would be called for this evening.

Both camps are now the very essence of activity.

CORRESPONDENCE

The Daily is not responsible for sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

The Editor,
McGill Daily,
Dear Sir:—The loud wails and copious tears that are being shed in the present discussion concerning McGill's failure to bring home the athletic bacon compel me to say a few things regarding athletics in general and their ultimate place in University life.

It was, I believe, John Stuart Mill who said if a sensible person were asked why a university should exist his answer would be to encourage philosophy. Surely, Mr. Editor, this should still be our aim, and it is so in the country in which Mill lived and in Europe generally. In America who can say that universities exist for this purpose? Instead of a search for wisdom we see substituted a desire for glory; the most envied undergraduate is not the man of profound accomplishment, but the man who can "do his stuff" when a drop kick is badly needed. Let me state at once that I consider athletics, i.e., some form of physical recreation, as very desirable and of unquestioned benefit to the person participating, but the vast amount of time, money and energy, both physical and mental, lavished on major sport nowadays in America is absolutely ridiculous, and certainly not a prime function of a first rate institution of learning. The person who said that a university was a stadium with a college building beside it was not far wrong. But these matters are too well known even to require discussion. The tendency to adopt business methods in sport and all that goes with such methods has been deprecated by not a few serious minded individuals, even in America.

What, then, do your correspondents mean by bemoaning the fact that our University has lost prestige in not winning a football or hockey championship during the last few years? Which is the greater honour: that of a season's victories by a team representing McGill on the gridiron or hockey rink or that achieved by men like Osier or Sir William Dawson or Rutherford who stand for McGill in the realm of science? The former glories are ephemeral; a few years of championships are succeeded by a few years of crushing defeats but the accomplishments of the latter remain for ever and do far, far more to bring the name of McGill before the world.

I do not, Mr. Editor for a moment condemn athletics entirely nor do I consider them incompatible with true university spirit or intellectual attainment. A moment's reflection will convince any level-headed individual that, while sport has its proper place it is not the chief aim of a hall of learning. And, if as has happened lately in America, athletics have been unduly stressed, let us at least try to preserve our balance; let McGill also be in time known as a stadium with a college building beside it. And, as for those of your correspondents who are on the point of donning sackcloth and ashes, let me assure them that, if they live long enough, they will surely see seven years of famine replaced by seven years of plenty. In meantime let McGill keep up her record in learning and scientific accomplishment, and strive to exceed it with all her might. Let other "Universities" go crazy over football and such things. Failure to win championships, per se will not lower McGill's prestige as long as she plays the game, but failure to recognize our true aim; namely the attainment of learning, cannot be compensated for by a million championships. Which is the more worthy, I will let the thoughtful reader decide.

Yours Truly
William H. Finney Med '27

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Sir:—The suggestion by "Klemgaw" to the effect that one of the four "McGill Revue" performances should be staged exclusively for McGill students and their immediate friends is excellent, and undoubtedly expresses the sentiments of a large part of the student body.

Four performances in which "Our friends the public" constitute two thirds or more of the audience in each case may assure success financially but it does seem that its greater value as a College function is sacrificed thereby.

"McGILL" REVUE

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:—I was very much impressed by the letter which appeared in this column Thursday. It struck a religious note not often heard in a godless university, and it stirred me as few things have. In fact, as I sort through my experiences, I cannot find another occasion when I have been so profoundly affected.

I agree with Ecclesiasticus, and hope that his excellent and timely proposal will receive the consideration of every student. Not every day are we shown a way of adapting prayer to the important affairs of life. For, after all, religion, to merit the grand old name, must be practical. It must be applied not to one, not to two, not to three, not even to four, but to all life's concerns, big and little.

Religion should not be kept under lock and key in the churches. Churches are for the teaching of religion. The roaring world is the stage of its practice, at the present time as far as religion is concerned, a stage of bare boards, dark and empty. If the world is to be made better, religion must be given its chance to act. The work of bringing such a change about is in the hands of students.

Where can a better start towards the millennium be made than in that important field of activity, inter-collegiate athletics? And who can better be the initiators of the glorious movement than the students of McGill.

Surely not the students of Toronto and Queen's. Their teams win. They have nothing to pray for and as everyone who has tried it knows praying for nothing is rather useless. Prayer is the inalienable right of the humble. It does not become people who stand in the sunshine of victory. It is the prerogative of the meek and lowly, the down-trodden. It is not for Toronto, not for Queen's, but for McGill. The hearts of her students are weighed down with the sorrow of defeat; their souls wear the sackcloth of petition. Ecclesiasticus is right; prayer is our privilege. Let us follow the path he marks.

Your comment, Mr. Editor, seems in poor taste. This man, Ecclesiasticus, is no faith-blinded zealot, as you appear to think. His case is most reasonably put, and he merits a respectful hearing. If for no other reason than that he joins to his flaming zeal an irresistible logic. Step by step he proceeds calmly and forcefully. Without prayer, he points out, McGill loses game after game. Players play, coaches coach, rooters root; all in vain. McGill never wins, is ever losing. There must be a reason, very shrewdly observes Ecclesiasticus, for this lamentable condition of affairs.

Are the players to blame? Ecclesiasticus says No. They are as he so quaintly and originally puts it, "of the finest flower of Canadian youth," and are trained and nourished to a physical efficiency not below that of their rivals.

Are the coaches to blame? No says Ecclesiasticus again. They are experts men of genius, well-paid.

Are the rooters to blame? No. The men and women of McGill, lung for lung, invite comparison with any in America.

If not these, then who? then what?

Lack of prayer, claims Ecclesiasticus; and he goes on to prove his contention. And he does prove it, in his quiet, masterly fashion. McGill needs prayer as an integral part of her athletic system. If she is to win—and for what other reason has she teams?—her students must pray, and pray regularly and hard. There is no other way of triumphing with decent regularity over Toronto and Queen's. With prayer added to her athletics, McGill will win and never lose. Her feet will rest forever upon the necks of her inimical sisters. The lives of her students and graduates will be a long, un-ending happiness. She will possess the keys of heaven; and can quite contentedly "give 'em hell." She will have no use for it. Could anything be more logical. I think not and still get space in the Daily.

But...would it be the sporting thing this praying for victory? McGill has a rigid code of honour, which has made her refuse to take advantage of her opponents. Prayer would be a tremendous weight to throw on her side of the balance. The other teams would have no chance at all of winning. Would it be fair?

Perhaps, instead of McGill's having a monopoly of prayer—and that seems to have been Ecclesiasticus' loyal intention—could we not arrange that Queen's and Toronto adopt prayer along with us, I think we could. The volume and variety could be controlled by agreement, and the thing kept strictly amateur. Methodists could pray only in opposition to Methodists, Hebrews against Hebrews, Catholics against Catholics, and if a school had adherents of a certain religion, and another school had none, to match, these could be barred from praying. Really, it could be made quite sporting.

Of course, it would be less effective than Ecclesiasticus' scheme, but it would fit in better with McGill's old-fashioned code. It has been hard to reconcile religion and fair-play, but I seem to have done it.

Some may ask by what right does Ecclesiasticus or any other attempt

INTERMEDIATE B LOSE TO Y.M.H.A.

Last Game Before Basketball Play-off

Matched with a team of senior calibre both in experience and in weight, the McGill Intermediate B Basketball team gave an excellent account of themselves in their game with the Y. M. H. A. squad at the latter's gymnasium last night.

Though the game was but an exhibition match, both teams fought from the beginning to end with determination and it was not till half time that the fates turned against the McGill Team.

Throughout the entire first period McGill's good combination was noticeable and shots at the basket were numerous but the College team did not seem to be able to obtain any lead at the opening of the second period. Y. M. H. A. rallied and play became decidedly faster. Y. M. H. A. obtaining a lead of ten or twelve points which they managed to hold till the end, the final score being 20 to 38.

As both teams are to meet in play-off games soon, Y. M. H. A. with M. A. A. A. and McGill Intermediate B, meet the Seniors at 5.15 on Friday evening at Montreal High Gymnasium, with only one intervening practice Wednesday, last night's game served as a final strenuous workout for both teams.

to make religion a subsidiary of athletics? Not knowing the answer I am unable to say, but I am as usual ready to improve upon Ecclesiasticus.

Make religion itself competitive. Have a praying team, financed and controlled by the Athletic Board, and elevate religion to the dignity of an intercollegiate sport. It could be done, I think, as well with religion, as say, with soccer and wrestling.

Picture one of the games. In the centre of the packed stadium the two teams line up. The referee after cautioning the players against foul tactics announces the petition for which the teams will pray. He blows his whistle; the game is on....

Recent Scientific Research Work At McGill University

During anesthesia caused by ether and other general anesthetics, a condition of the body known as acidosis develops whose chief characteristic is a lowering in the bicarbonate content of blood. This is presumably due to the production of an acid or acids which does not occur under normal conditions. We have been successful in showing that a redistribution of phosphoric acid in the body is one of the factors involved. Further work is planned to obtain more complete information.

Because of the close chemical relationship of ordinary ether and ethylene oxide, it was surmised that the last named might be an efficient general anesthetic possibly superior to the first two. Ethylene oxide was prepared therefore and tested on animals. It was found quite toxic and of no use as an anesthetic. Though it produces anesthesia this is more than overbalanced by other toxic actions.

At the base of the brain (accessible through the roof of the mouth) is a small gland known as the pituitary gland. Extracts of a particular portion of it when administered to animals and human beings exert a variety of actions—contractions of the uterus, intestine etc., diminution of urine secretion in the disease known as diabetes insipidus, high blood pressure. It is unknown whether these actions are due to a single or to several constituents. An effort to obtain light on the point is in progress.

Pituitary extracts under some conditions cause an increased urine secretion instead of a decrease secretion as just noted in the case of diabetes insipidus. Experiments are in progress to determine the conditions which influence the nature of the response to pituitary administration.

Several theories have been proposed to explain the mechanism of urine formation in the kidney. From a study the variations in the composition and concentration of the urine caused by certain drugs, we believe that information may be obtained which will help to reach some conclusions concerning the nature of the kidney mechanism. Such experiments are in progress.

The various procedures devised for estimating the functional efficiency of the liver have largely proven inadequate to the needs of the clinic. This is due to errors in the principles involved or due to errors inherent in the technique of performance.

By studying the ability of the liver to remove from the blood certain substances that are excreted in the bile, a new colored substance has been found which when injected into the blood is rapidly removed by the normal liver, but which remains in the blood if the liver is diseased. The amount that remains in the blood affords a quantitative measure of liver function. Employing this principle, it has been possible to determine the normal functional reserve power of the liver. It is also possible to estimate more accurately the degree of functional impairment that occurs in different liver diseases, as an aid in the diagnosis and prognosis of these conditions.

Studies concerned with the physiology of liver secretion have recently been completed. It was found that the bile pigments and various dyestuffs that are excreted by the liver, are almost entirely bound to the proteins of the circulating blood. This combination prevents the kidney from excreting these substances. The bile salts however, which are chemical compounds formed in the liver, have the property of liberating the bile pigments and dyes from their union with proteins, and so allow their excretion in the bile to occur.

A new test has been devised that will detect the higher proteins in a concentration of 1 to 3 or 4 million. This is being applied to the study of different body fluids.

SCI. '28 BASKETEERS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Defeat Arts '26 by 28—11 in Rough Game Yesterday

The members of the Science '28 team won their numerical last night when they decisively defeated Arts '26 by a score of 28-11 in the championship basketball game of the season at Molson Hall.

The game started at seven in Molson Hall and the winners from the very start demonstrated their superiority by better combination, better shooting, a better knowledge of the game. Many penalties were handed out to the losers, although the referee was very lenient. The game was fast throughout, both teams employing their substitutes freely and thus keeping up a fast pace from beginning to end.

The whole Science '28 team is worthy of praise and proved themselves a team of championship calibre. Walker, Viberg, Consiglio and Copping turned in excellent games and showed themselves to be above the average in all departments of the game.

Held and MacDonald were best for the losers, Held playing throughout the entire game.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:—

Arts '26.	Science '28.

Kursner	Walker
Held	Lalng
Left Field
Becker	Copping
Dainow	Francel
Centre
MacDonald	Viberg

SOPHOMORES TAKE GAME FROM SENIORS

Second Year Goal Netted by Miss Millar

With the disadvantage of having to play on very soft ice, the R. V. C. Sophomores won the hockey game from the Seniors by the score of 1-0, on the Hollow Rink yesterday.

The first period was the slowest of the three. The game first centred around the Fourth Year goal, but soon changed to the other end of the rink. By noticeable quick work Miss Millar obtained the puck, and bringing it down the ice through the Seniors' defence, scored for Second Year.

In the second period the play began to speed up. Miss D. Hutcheson and Miss Mulligan did good work for their teams. The puck was repeatedly carried up and down the ice, but neither team was able to make a goal. Both Miss Petrie and Miss McKeen did some excellent checking, with the result that the score still remained 1-0.

The third period opened with Miss E. Hutcheson making a break through the Sophomores' forward line, but she was unable to get through the defence. During all this period the play was well distributed, moving rapidly from one end of the ice to the other. Despite the efforts of both teams the score still stood at 1-0 when the final whistle blew, in favour of the Second Year.

The line-up was as follows.
